

Hi ,

The Aboriginal Community must decide how land is returned and managed. We don't own the land the land owns us if you change the current Aboriginal lands act you could have long issues with the Aboriginal community! No parcels of land should be returned to individuals or organisations the Aboriginal land council was put in place for a reason and it should stay that way! If we have healthy country we have healthy community we have Aboriginal land management workers who care for country like our old people did. If you change the current process there be ongoing issues of distrust with the Aboriginal community and the current government. I as an Aboriginal woman have no faith in the current Aboriginal affairs minister Roger something needs to be done fast as this is very very sad that we are still fighting the same fight we fought back in the 70's for our land returned to the rightful owners of Tasmania the Aboriginal community.

Always was always will be Aboriginal land.

Regards Carly Spotswood

Sent from my iPhone